1 Introduction

The College of Nurses of Ontario (CNO) is the governing body for nurses in Ontario, Canada. Our purpose is to protect the public by promoting safe nursing practice.

CNO sets the requirements for becoming a nurse in Ontario and the standards of practice that nurses must meet to maintain that designation. Only a person with a valid certificate of registration from CNO can practice as a nurse in Ontario and use the protected titles: nurse, Registered Nurse (RN), Registered Practical Nurse (RPN) or Nurse Practitioner (NP).

CNO publishes annual statistics reports to provide data for stakeholders about the nurses it registers. CNO continually enhances its reports based on stakeholder feedback. To find out more about CNO's statistical resources or to sign up for its statistics announcements, please visit www.cno.org/stats.

2 Methods and Notes

2.1 Who is included in this report?

Most applicants who register with CNO must successfully complete two examinations: a registration examination and a jurisprudence examination. The registration exam tests whether the writer has the knowledge, skill and judgment to provide safe care during their first year of practice. The jurisprudence exam tests the writer's knowledge of nursing and health care legislation in Ontario.

This report includes the results of only the registration examinations and only applicants to CNO.

Three types of applicants require successful completion of a registration examination when applying to CNO:

1. Registered Nurses in the General Class (RNs)
2. Registered Practical Nurses in the General Class (RPNs)
3. Nurse Practitioners (NPs)

2.2 Registration exam requirements

Applicants complete the following Council-approved<sup>1</sup> registration exams:

RN applicants complete the National Council Licensure Examination for Registered Nurses (NCLEX-RN).<sup>2</sup>

- Prior to 2017, RN applicants had three attempts to write their registration exam. Following the implementation of a registration regulation change on January 9, 2017 RN applicants have an unlimited number of writes for the NCLEX-RN.

RPN applicants complete the Canadian Practical Nurse Registration Examination (CPNRE).

- In May 2016, the CPNRE changed from a paper-based exam to a computer-based exam. The CPNRE's content remained the same. The change allowed the CPNRE to be offered more often and at more sites across Canada.
- RPN applicants have three attempts to write their registration exam.

<sup>2</sup> Visit www.ncsbn.org/nclex.htm for more information about the NCLEX-RN.

NP applicants complete a registration exam for the NP specialty they are applying to: Adult, Paediatrics or Primary Health Care.

- NP applicants have three attempts to write their registration exam.
- In 2020, the following NP registration exams were available to Ontario applicants:<sup>3</sup>
  - NP-Adult: The American Academy of Nurse Practitioners Certification Board's Adult-Gerontology Primary Care Nurse Practitioner Certification Examination
  - NP-Paediatrics: The Pediatric Nursing Certification Board's Pediatric Nurse Practitioner Primary Care Certification Examination
  - NP-Primary Health Care: The Canadian Nurse Practitioner Examination or the American Academy of Nurse Practitioners Certification Board's Family Nurse Practitioner Certification Examination

2.3 Location of nursing education

Location of nursing education is the province or country where an applicant's education took place. This report groups locations into the following: Ontario; other Canadian provinces or territories; and international.

Ontario: This group is for applicants who applied to CNO after completing an approved Ontario nursing program.

- An Ontario nursing program is one that is offered at an Ontario university or college, and is approved by CNO's Council for registration as a nurse in Ontario.
- In Ontario, nursing programs approved for RN registration grant university baccalaureate degrees in nursing. Nursing programs approved for RPN registration grant diplomas in practical nursing from a college of applied arts and technology (CAAT). Nursing programs approved for NP registration grant postbaccalaureate certificates, master's degrees or post-master's diplomas.

Other Canadian provinces or territories: This group is for applicants who applied to CNO after completing a nursing program in another Canadian province or territory.

International: This group is for applicants who applied to CNO after completing a nursing program outside of Canada.

<sup>3</sup>Council has approved other exams that fulfill the NP registration exam requirement, but applicants would have written them in other provinces or countries.

2.4 Pass rates

This report provides pass rate statistics, separated by attempt number. An attempt pass rate is the percentage of applicants who passed the exam on that given attempt of the exam. A first-attempt pass rate is the percentage of applicants who passed the exam on their first attempt. A year-end pass rate is the percentage of applicants who wrote the exam for the first time during that year and passed the exam by the end of that year.

Sections 3.1, 4.1 and 5.1 show attempt pass rates, regardless of the year in which the applicant wrote the exam for the first time, while sections 3.2, 4.2 and 5.2 show first-attempt pass rates only. Sections 3.3, 4.3 and 5.3 show first-attempt and year-end pass rates for applicants who wrote the exam for the first time during the indicated year.

3 Registered Nurse Exam Writers

In 2020, 6,934 Registered Nurse (RN) applicants to CNO wrote the National Council Licensure Examination for Registered Nurses (NCLEX-RN) at least once.

3.2 First-attempt pass rates for French-language RN programs in Ontario

Two Ontario universities offer RN programs in French: Laurentian University and University of Ottawa.

Exam writers can choose to write their registration exam in either English or French and can change their choice on subsequent attempts.

Table 3.5 shows 2017-2020 first-attempt pass rates for applicants from French-language RN programs in Ontario and the languages in which the applicants wrote their exams.

*Revised numbers - The 2019 Nursing Registration Exams Report incorrectly categorised some exam writes from the Laurentian University Full (French) and University of Ottawa Full with La Cité collégiale (French) programmes as having written the exam in French when in fact they wrote the exam in English.

**In 2016, CNO split the University of Ottawa Compressed (English and French) program into two programs: University of Ottawa Compressed (English) and University of Ottawa Compressed (French). Now CNO will only use the original combined program for applicants who graduated when the original combined program was still in effect.

3.3 First-attempt and year-end pass rates of RN applicants by Ontario university, program and collaborative partner

In Ontario, 15 universities offer RN nursing programs. Some universities offer more than one nursing program and some offer nursing programs in collaboration with a college. Table 3.6 shows Ontario RN applicants' first-attempt pass rates by university, program and collaborative partner for 2017-2020. It also shows year-end pass rates for Ontario RN applicants whose first attempt was during that year.

3.3.1 Program definition guide

In 2015, CNO revised Ontario RN nursing program names and definitions. The following RN program types are available in Ontario:

Full: Direct entry

A program for students who meet standard admission criteria. They complete a structured nursing curriculum in its entirety and attain an academic credential (a university degree or CAAT diploma).

Compressed: Second-level entry

A program for students who meet admission criteria based on pre-determined university credits. They complete a shorter curriculum than the direct-entry full program and attain an academic credential (a university degree or CAAT diploma).

Specified: Pre-health related

A program for students who meet admission criteria based on pre-determined health-related credentials. They complete a specific nursing curriculum and attain an academic credential (a university degree, CAAT diploma or NP specialty certificate).

4.2 First-attempt pass rates for French-language RPN programs in Ontario

Two Ontario colleges offer RPN programs in French: La Cité collégiale and Collège Boréal.

Exam writers can choose to write their registration exam in either English or French and can change their choice on subsequent attempts.

Table 4.5 shows 2016-2020 first-attempt pass rates for applicants from French-language RPN programs in Ontario and the languages in which the applicants wrote their exams.

4.3 First-attempt and year-end pass rates of RPN applicants by Ontario college, program and campus

In Ontario, 24 colleges offer practical nursing programs. Some colleges offer more than one practical nursing program and some offer practical nursing programs at different campuses of the same college. Table 4.6 shows Ontario RPN applicants' first-attempt pass rates by college, program and campus. It also shows year-end pass rates for Ontario RPN applicants whose first attempt was during that year.

5.2 First-attempt pass rates for French-language NP programs in Ontario

Two Ontario universities offer NP programs in French: Laurentian University and University of Ottawa.

Exam writers can choose to write their registration exam in either English or French and can change their choice on subsequent attempts.

Table 5.5 shows 2016-2020 first-attempt pass rates for applicants from French-language NP programs in Ontario and the languages in which the applicants wrote their exams.

5.3 First-attempt and year-end pass rates of NP applicants by specialty and Ontario university

In Ontario, 10 universities offer NP nursing programs. There are three NP specialties: Primary Health Care, Adult and Paediatric, and some universities offer programs for more than one specialty. Table 5.6 shows Ontario NP applicants' first-attempt pass rates by university and specialty. It also shows year-end pass rates for Ontario NP applicants whose first attempt was during that year.
