For those writing the CPNRE in November, we recommend they wait to receive their CPNRE results in Dec. 2021. The final exam window for the CPNRE is Nov. 8 to Nov. 28, 2021, with registration for this exam opening on Dec. 1, 2021.* The REx-PN will be available to write at any time in permanent and temporary nursing centres of the exam provider, Pearson Vue.

To learn more about the passing standard, including how it is determined, visit: CNO REX-PN FAQS

A writer passes the exam when the computer determines they are above the passing standard — a cut point that marks the minimum ability level required to provide safe and effective nursing care. With each question answered, the computer's estimate of the writer's ability becomes more precise.

The REx-PN is a computerized adaptive test (CAT) designed to measure the writer's ability — their entry-level nursing knowledge, skill and judgment. Every new writer takes a questions on the core competencies required to practice and is asked questions based on the competencies being tested. To learn more about the CAT test format, visit: CNO REX-PN FAQS

We are always available to answer your questions. You can reach out to us at RExPN@cnomail.org

There is still time to register! Mid-December before registering to write the REx-PN. If they register for the REx-PN then learn they passed the CPNRE, they cannot get a refund from the exam provider for their REx-PN registration fee. We are aware of some third-party exam preparation courses being developed in English, and have heard that some schools are looking into the options of offering such courses in French. As the regulator, we cannot be involved in helping someone prepare to write the REx-PN. Students may find prep courses helpful in preparing for the exam, but the choice of what to do when preparing for the exam is theirs. While we cannot be involved in helping someone prepare, we strongly encourage our students to know that they do not have access to the REx-PN question bank and students should use caution when investigating their options.
